MARK TWAIN WAS BORN IN CARSON CITY

It could be said Mark Twain was born in Carson City, and here's why: As a cub reporter for the Territorial Enterprise, he was back in town, San Clement was wanting to name a post office. He had read "Dial" and "Thomas Jefferson Sedgwick," and they got along fine. So in a flight of fancy, Sam never up a column about a Carson City dreamlike party he had attended, and signed that column, "Dreadfully Mark Twain."

So it happened that the father of our national literature took a pen name that would become known world wide. "Mark Twain," right here in Carson City. We celebrate that occasion with Carson City's First Annual Mark Twain Days Festival.

HALEY'S COMET ARTICLE

Après avoir écrit "Quatrevingt-neuf ans et une nuit" et "Tom Sawyer", Twain a écrit "Haley's Comet" qui est un roman qui raconte la vie de Mark Twain pendant la période de la découverte de la comète Haley.

MACAVOY'S SHOW AND INTERVIEW

Après avoir écrit "Quatrevingt-neuf ans et une nuit" et "Tom Sawyer", Twain a écrit "Macavoy's Show and Interview" qui est un roman qui raconte la vie de Mark Twain pendant la période de la découverte de la comète Haley.
